

The Farmers Have A Fighting Champion At Last

BLOODY BUTCHER
and Service Writer

HOPE, Ark., March 5.—The most interesting thing about Alexander Legge is that he is a federal jobholder. He is not afraid to tell anyone what he thinks.

Legge is the chairman of the Federal Farm Board marks him as a man apart in Washington. He is known from political pressure, he is looking forward to a bigger and better job. He has all the money he can get, and you just can't imagine anyone of whom he might be afraid.

Legge's ideas which seem to act as a stimulant in the early stages of the movement to put agriculture on a paying basis are his own. He is a farmer and his own boss. He is doing a difficult job in his own way.

Some people consider Legge help and pleasant and sympathetic while others regard him as a hard-boiled individual. It all depends on what Legge thinks of them and their proposals. He faces a tremendously big job, but no one so far has suggested that he isn't able, dynamic and efficient—his dynamic and efficient record proves that he is all those things.

A Six-Foot, 200-Pounder
There are a few men in Washington whose appearance causes many strangers to ask: "Who's that?" Legge is one of them. He's a big, lanky Scotchman with a rather large head, more than six feet tall and weighing about 200 pounds. His face is clean-shaven and red. Sometimes it wears the most baleful look that has been seen here since the retirement of Senator Jim Reed of Missouri. Legge wears dark, conservative clothes. He eats lightly, holding back at the table, but keeping plenty of apples and pears in his office.

He scowls a great deal, especially when studying or thinking. But he kids his staff and usually says it with a smile. If he has to criticize his subordinates. In his office he thinks fast, but moves slowly.

He lives at the Willard hotel, only a block away from the Farm Board offices, and is up early every morning to exercise with the Hoover "medicine ball cabinet." This medicine ball tossing is said to be his nearest approach to social life. He has made friends all over the world, but has no family and usually takes papers to his hotel to work on at night. All his movements seem to be guided by his determination to put the farm job over in a big way.

When President Hoover sounded him out about leaving his $100,000-a-year job as president of the International Harvester Co., to go on the Farm Board, Legge is said to have accepted on condition that he be made chairman. Originally he took the job for a single year, ending next July 15, but it seems unlikely that he will quit at that time unless convinced that the campaign to put agriculture on a sound basis is off to a good start.

After selling farm machinery for 40 years Legge appreciated what farmers were up against and also, that the farming business has been the basis for his own rapid rise.

"I'm not a seeker for his own rapid rise."

"I'm not a seeker for the job," he told the Senate Agriculture Committee after some objection had been made to confirmation of his appointment. "I am not even a volunteer. You can't hurt my feelings by sending me home. That is perfectly all right and I am perfectly willing you should."

" . . . I think perhaps I know more farmers personally than even any of you."

Legge was quickly confirmed and has been talking turkey to people here ever since. He told President Butterworth of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, for instance, that the chamber ought to divert itself of the economic theories of the horse-and-buggy age.

Senator Caraway of Arkansas, questioning Legge, said: "I believe you said you read the farm bill 20 times and didn't understand it?"

Frankly," replied Legge, "I will read it 20 times more and then I am doubtful whether I will understand it."

LEGGE'S LIFE IN BRIEF

Alexander Legge (pronounced Leg) was born on a farm in Dane county, Wis., in 1866, moved to Nebraska in 1881, worked on a farm 10 years, took a job with the International Harvester Company as collector, was assistant general sales manager by 1906, general and vice president in 1913 and president in 1922. He was also economic adviser to the American Peace Commission, vice chairman of the War Industries Board and manager of the Allied Purchasing Commission. For his services he was awarded the D. S. C.

Lately some admirers have called him "the brightest star in the Hoover administration's crown." At any rate, he is hard-boiled, hard-headed and astute. And he gets things done for the farmers.

WHAT DOES YOUR YARD NEED?

Ask C. L. Tipton, the Landscape Man of Little Rock, who has had 32 years experience and who will help you in any way he can to beautify your yard and also, will tell you how to trim and take care of what you have that you may get the best results, and without costing you anything, except a letter, postal card or phone call. He will be in Hope again next week and if you will let him know he will be glad to call and see you.

He has just finished a job for Mr. R. T. White and has other yards to do within a few days. What about yours? His stock is the best that can be bought, with 5 car loads to select from, including about 50 varieties of evergreen plants, also two year field grown roses, and his prices are reasonable.

A few of the larger contracts he has had, are the Arlington Hotel and St. Joseph's Hospital in Hot Springs; the J. T. James Home in Ruston, La.; C. L. Cabe home, Texarkana; W. E. Lenon and F. W. Allsopp homes; and Shrine Country Club, Little Rock. He also furnished all evergreens and did the planting for the new Little Rock High School.

Do not delay, send him your address today!

Five Dipping Vats Wrecked By Blasts

All Located Near DeRoche Hot Springs County; No Motives Found.

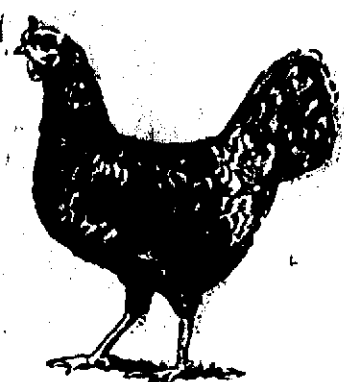

MALVERN, March 6.—Five dipping vats in the northern part of the county near DeRoche, were blown up with dynamite Monday night. An investigation was made yesterday but no clues as to the persons causing the explosion were found. A stick of dynamite was found in another vat, but the vat had not been damaged. Cause for the dynamiting could not be learned.

Two vats were left undamaged in that section and guards were placed around them tonight and the dipping of cattle will be done in them to be learned.

Power Farming School A Success

Last week we had our first Power Farming School, the first of which from now on, will be an annual event. The purpose of these schools will be to familiarize each tractor owner with his machine and to show him through moving pictures, the very latest in farm equipment. The day of the power farmer is in Hempstead County to stay and it is our intention to give the same service to Tractor's and Power Farm Equipment that you are getting from your automobile dealer.

We take a great deal of pleasure in announcing that we have the only successful Hill Drop Planter for work under any and all conditions. It is the McCormick-Deering Lutz Hill Drop Planter and puts the cotton on the ground with only a fall of an inch and a half.

We have a complete stock of plow shares, single trees and etc. Cox, Henderson Jones and several others down to see our show last week and we are sure they can tell you that there is going to be a very great change in the method of farming during the next few years. We continue to talk constantly of more and better machinery on the farm but we are convinced that this will be the only salvation for the farmer. The most prosperous farmers in the United States are the ones with the greatest investment in machinery. If we continue to talk about it each time you see us, just think that we are trying to help the community.

We have a complete stock of plow shares, single trees, and etc. now and would like to fill your needs in these. Come in and see them when you are in town.

The man was making so much rabbit sausage that a Government Inspector was sent to find out about it. When queried, the sausage maker said that there was rabbit in the sausage—at least fifty-fifty, the rest being horse-meat. The question pushed farther, the sausage maker replied: One horse to one rabbit—fifty-fifty.

Absolutely Identity of the young lady is withheld, but the memory of her answer lingers on with the instructor conducting a science course at a local high school. One of the requirements in the written quiz was: "Define a bolt and nut and explain the difference, if any." The girl wrote:

A bolt is a thing like a stick of hard metal such as iron with a square bunch on one end and a lot of scratching wound around the other end. A nut is similar to the bolt only just the opposite, being a hole, in a little chunk of iron saved off short, with wrinkles around the inside of the hole. The startled professor marked that one with a large A.

The Third Degree's Dangers

EVERYBODY in America knows about the "third degree"—the system of brutality whereby American police officials hammer confessions out of prisoners. Usually the practice is concealed, or mentioned with apologies; but now comes Michael Fiaschetti, former head of the Italian squad of the New York City police force, to defend it openly as the best weapon the police have.

Fiaschetti bases his defense of the practice on his own experience. Some years ago, he says, the murder of a small boy baffled the police. A stool pigeon eventually gave them information on which they arrested five men. They knew these men were the murderers, but they could not prove it. The men refused to talk, and it looked as if they might have to release them.

"Then I went to work," says Fiaschetti. "I put the five men in a room and walked in several minutes later armed with a sawed-off baseball bat. When I came out there was blood spattered on the walls and ceiling. And I had five signed confessions. All went to the electric chair."

Fiaschetti justifies the third degree, in this case, on the ground that five murderers would have gone free if it had not been employed.

It's hard to work up much sympathy over the murder of a little boy, to be sure; but just suppose that the stool pigeon who caused the arrest of these five men had made a mistake? Suppose that he had accidentally or purposely caused five innocent men to be arrested?

Is it pleasant to think of a husky cop wading into five innocent men with a baseball bat, hammering them until there was blood on the walls and ceiling?

That's what happens all too often when the third degree is used. The police, you see, occasionally become convinced that a man is guilty when he is really innocent; and innocent men have confessed to crimes they did not commit merely to escape torture.

The third degree may have its uses. But the risks are too great. It can be abused too easily.

$1,500,000,000 Estate

ABDUL HAMIL II, Sultan of Turkey, died in Magnesia, a town in Asia Minor. At the time of his death (1918), though a prisoner of the "Young Turkish" Government he was worth $1,500,000,000, was generally considered the richest man in the world. Last week the Greek Government agreed to pay $50,000,000 to nine of his widows, thirteen of his children. Not only the heirs but many a United States tycoon rejoiced.

Sultan Abdul Hamid, called "Abdul the Damned" by phrase-making historians, was crafty, cruel, ignorant, yet at the beginning of the World War his personal estates included half the Province of Saloniki, holdings in the Island of Cyprus, Thessaly, Greece, Syria, Palestine and what is now the Kingdom of Iraq, a good section of the rich tobacco lands of Macedonia (whence "Egyptian" cigarettes) and about $25,000,000 in jewels. When he was deposed in 1909, all these were confiscated.

Five years ago numbers of British and United States financiers decided that Abdul the Damned's heirs had a good case in international law. With the understanding that they were to receive a fat slice of any funds paid to Abdul's heirs, they successfully organized three corporations to push the legal battle: Anglo-Hellenic Corporation, succeeded by Valideh Trust, Ltd., and finally Aegean Financial Trust. Other United States tycoons have organized other corporations on the same plan to recover Habsburg properties in Austria and Hungary.

Not satisfied with last week's fifty millions from Greece, officials of the Aegean Financial Trust announced that they had every hope of obtaining an additional billion for their clients from the Kingdom of Iraq.—Time.

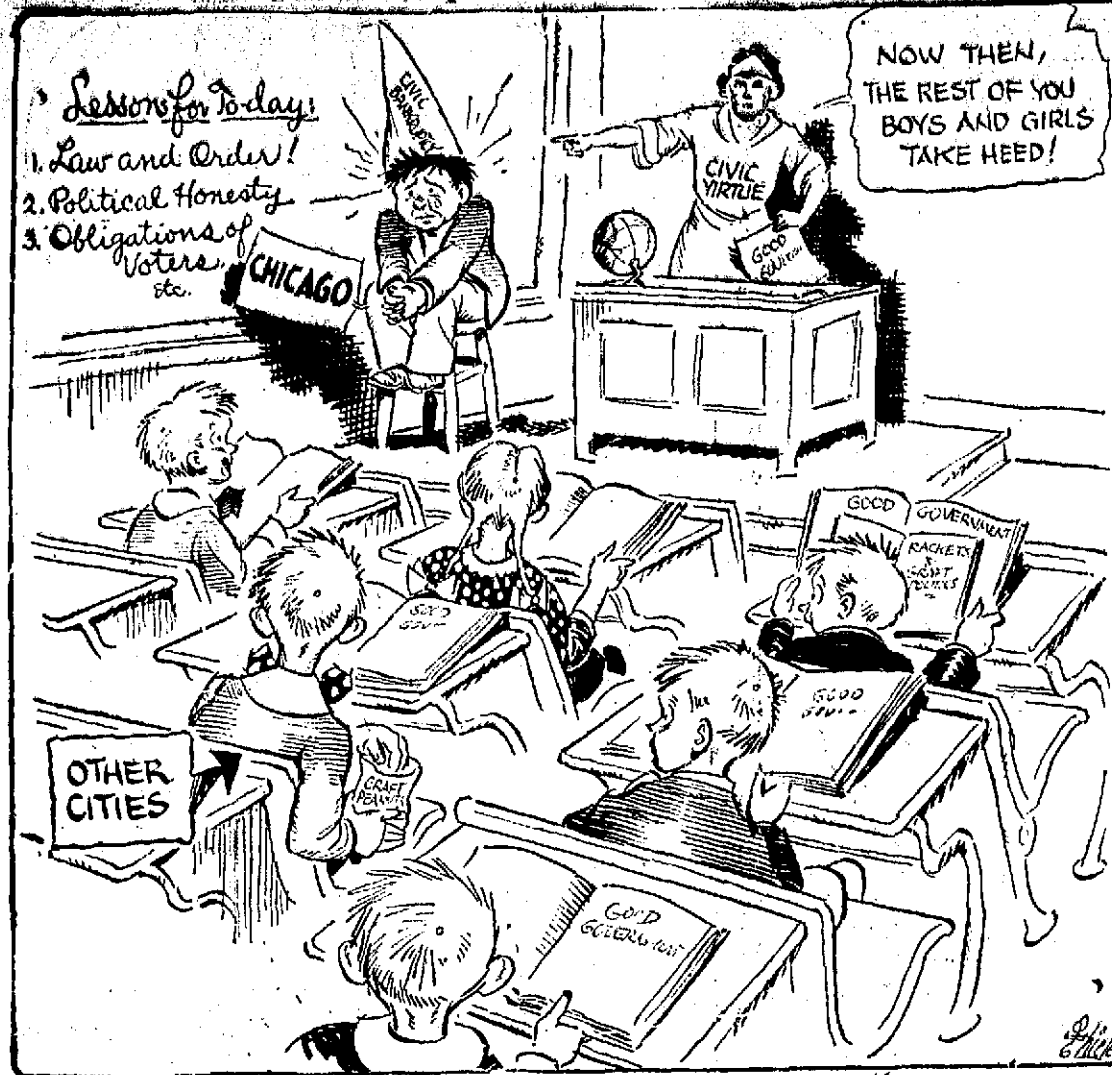

Savagery

THERE seems to be a sort of savagery in some people's natures that lies closer to the surface than we generally suppose.

The day before the state of Ohio electrocuted Dr. James H. Snook for the murder of a university coed, several women got in touch with state prison officials and asked that they be given the privilege of pulling the switch that would send him to death.

Of course, these requests were refused. But the mere fact that they were made at all is a discouraging indication. A person who would volunteer for a job like that must have a savage streak in her makeup somewhere. Apparently we are not yet entirely civilized.

An Example for the Class!

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—The Democrats believe they have gained much popular favor through their successful opposition to the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill in co-operation with the Republican progressives.

Democratic senators, unite in scoffing at the charge that the delay in passing a tariff measure in the upper house, caused by the care they have taken in pulling the finance committee's bill apart, has had an unfortunate rather than a beneficial effect on the country.

Storrs Speed of House

"In the Senate," says Senator Albert W. Barkley of Kentucky, "our time has been taken up by the effort to prevent infliction on the country of indefensible increases in the tariff as carried in the Hawley-Smoot bill."

"The House seems to have confined itself to the appropriation bill and but one prohibition enforcement measure—the transfer of the enforcement machinery from the Treasury to the Department of Justice. While an appropriation bill may be regarded as a constructive measure, the routine activity of passing one is not exactly legislative work, but only the customary method of supplying needs of the government."

"The fight over the tariff bill has been more prolonged than would have been necessary if the bill had been properly considered in the House. But it was jammed through there under gag rule which prevented even the offering of amendments."

ments. That made it necessary for the Senate to look more carefully into each item and gather the facts more scientifically than ever before. That is what the Democrats, aided by the progressive Republicans, have been trying to do.

"We have not been actuated by any desire to injure legitimate business and for that reason have offered few amendments reducing rates in the present law, but we have tried to benefit agriculture in so far as a tariff may do so without at the same time nullifying these benefits by increasing the cost of the necessities which agriculture must buy."

"All indications point to 'increasing Democratic gains' throughout the country, Barkley said, because the people have discovered that Republican claims of perpetual prosperity under Republican rule were without foundation."

"More men are out of employment and seeking work today than at any time in the last 20 years," continued the Kentucky senator. "This is a deplorable situation which no one contemplates with pleasure and it is made more deplorable when we reflect that the present administration has done nothing to relieve the situation except to make further claims of universal prosperity."

Barkley believes that Republican leadership, both in the White House and in Congress, is at fault for having taken no effective remedial steps. He contends that Democrats and progressives have been the only ones even to complain about conditions.

THE homemaker who must use the same fundamental foods over and over again will find that clever seasoning will do much to break the monotony of the necessary repetition.

Although "high" seasoning should never be used to cover up poor food or poor cooking, the right use of spices, herbs and condiments will add zest and give additional relish to good wholesome foods. Many famous cooks rely on the wise use of these ingredients as one of the secrets of their art.

The natural pungent flavoring properties of certain foodstuffs stimulate appetite, create a desire for food, and in starting the flow of digestive juices are very real aids to digestion.

Many seasonings are available in the dried state. Some of them may be used green as garnishes or relishes in salads as well as in cooking. Success in their use depends more on the right combination of flavors than on any artificial or painstaking preparation. The one exception is curry powder, which must be carefully and thoroughly cooked in a special way to bring out its full flavor.

Season With Care

Restraint always must be practiced in the use of seasonings. Only enough should be used to bring out the flavor of the food being seasoned.

As one studies and enlarges the list of seasonings, many new uses for condiments will be discovered. The leaves of tarragon have a hot, pungent taste. They are commonly used to flavor vinegars for salads, but a few finely chopped leaves are very good in tartar sauce.

The leaves of dill are a flavorful addition to fish, egg, cheese or meat salad. Cooked with fish, they give a pleasant pungency.

Fennel has a hot, sweet flavor reminding one of anise. A few seeds add spiciness to fruit pies and baked fruit. The leaves, fresh or dried, are often used for seasoning fish. Fresh fennel sometimes is served as a substitute for celery.

Marjoram is used either fresh or dry for flavoring soups and stews and in the stuffing for all meats and fish.

Sage ordinarily is used in poultry and meat dressings, but it is also good in cheese dishes and vegetable combinations. The flowers sometimes are used in salads, especially in those made with cheese.

Thyme and summer savory are used much the same as sage. Savory combines particularly well with horseradish in sauces.

Sweet basil has a flower much like cloves. It may be used in salad tomato soups and sauces. Fruit punches are given a refreshing spiciness by the addition of the crushed leaves.

These condiments all are very inexpensive and add practically nothing to the cost of cooking. The occasional use of them will impart a new flavor and interest to everyday dishes.

ONCE UPON A TIME

Arthur Murray, the New York dancing teacher, started out to be an architect, but he found that teaching beautiful capstans of industry and heavy-footed brokers how to be the life of the party paid bigger returns.

Mr. and Mrs. Hub Hollis and little son Cammon Tylan and Barney Rider called on Mr. and Mrs. Basil Rider Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Johnson visited relatives at Fairview Saturday and Sunday.

Harold and Oliver Mayton called on Ord Graham of Blevins, Sunday.

Miss Lillian Ross and Carl Huckabee, Opal and Rora Taylor and Madie Huckabee were out joy riding Sunday afternoon.

Thursday, March 6, 1930.

The dance of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Vines was well attended by a large crowd, Saturday night.

Mrs. Lennie Rider and little Dorothy Sally, Sid Thomas, Mrs. Lucile Johnson and little daughter, Mable and Mr. and Mrs. Garner Myers of Waterloo called on Mr. Alf Ross and family Monday night.

We are glad to have little Francine Rogers and Alma Ross back to school after being absent for two weeks.

Poultry Day Saturday, March Eighth

The farmers of this entire trade territory are invited to Hope this Saturday, to see the many window displays of needs for the poultry man.

Poultry raising has brought additional cash money to many Hempstead county farm homes, and this bank wishes to encourage the spectacular growth of this farm by-product.

We believe that poultry raising will bring greater farm prosperity to every one who engages in it, especially through scientific feeding and good stock.

The Return of Blue Larkspur

WHEN the vanguard of the racing hosts wends northward to Pimlico for the spring meeting, an old familiar figure will come back to the races—Blue Larkspur. Last year's three-year-old champion, word comes from the Idle Hour Farm of E. R. Bradley, that the horse is as sound as a bell and soon will be put into training.

Blue Larkspur injured a tendon in training just before the Travers at Saratoga last year. The leg is now as good as ever, and the champion may reach his best form about the time of the $25,000 Dixie handicap at Pimlico. The Bradley are well pointed for the big handicaps in the east.

Sounds Like a Race

THERE is a chance that some spirited racing will be seen at Arlington Park in early summer when favorites and other notables from Europe come to compete in the $100,000 international race. Blue Larkspur, if he takes to the training well, may be entered. Another candidate is Display, who was retired to the stud recently, but who will emerge for this event. Display only needs to win $37,264 to lead the all-time money winners, as Walter J. Salmon's great horse already has amassed earnings of $256,376. Zev now holds the record with $213,639. Display already has passed Exterminator's mark of $232,596. A victory at Chicago would place Display on top.

Blue Larkspur's victory in the Chicago classic last year put him within reach of the charmed circle of thoroughbreds who have earned $200,000 or more, and he seemed a likely winner of the Travers, when his injury set him back.

If Mr. Hertz could be persuaded to put Reigh Count back into training for the Arlington event, there would be quite a crowd of blue-blooded equines out there chasing one another around. It would be an interesting party.

Display's Mean Manners

DISPLAY might now be leading money winner of all time but for his inability to win in his

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

THE most optimistic men in the world are Tommy Webster and Fred Darnell. . . . They are London newspapermen and they came 4300 miles to see the Sharkey-Scott fight. . . . Phil once sued Webster for libel, too. . . . Tommy said he hoped Phil won because it would give him an opportunity to draw a British heavyweight in a new position. . . . Jim Maloney and Johnny Risso tapered off their training drills at Miami in the old swimming tank used by Young Stripling last year. . . . It was drained of course, tush, tush! . . . Use of that tank last year won for Mr. Stripling from one scotch the moniker, "the dry tank barracuda." Mickey Cochran went for a hike at Hot Springs and gained six pounds. . . . home state of New York. The six-year-old son of Fair Play has tried for nearly every great stake on the Metropolitan circuit, but has won few. Owner Walter Salmon and jockeys Johnny Maiben and L. Shafer, who have ridden Display, are at a loss to account for his inability to win on the home courses. He has been beaten in New York by Crusader, Diavolo and others to whom he has shown a shining pair of heels on other tracks.

Display has been startlingly inconsistent, considering the amount of money he has won. In 99 starts he won 23 races, nearly all stake events. He has been beaten by ordinary horses and has defeated the best in the business.

Bad actions at the post have cost him enough races to pass Zev's mark. Jockeys say he likes to win by the narrowest of squeaks. He likes to beat 'em with just a nose in front. Mean of him, I'd say.

Rosston School Gym Completed

Will Open Saturday Evening With Basketball Tournament.

PRESCOTT, March 6.—The Rosston High School gymnasium is completed and will be opened Saturday evening with the annual basketball tournament. The gymnasium was made possible by work of the pupils and patrons of the school. It cost $1,500 and is a good substantial structure. It has a seating capacity of 700 and is lighted with electric lights.

The Rosston Athletic Club is staging the county tournament and the two strongest teams in the county will be in the finals.

A small admission will be charged. Officials will be Turbeyville, Ouachita and Haynes, Magnolia A. & M.

Society Beauty Widowed by Suicide

Orphaned, then widowed, by suicides has been the tragic lot of Mrs. Louise Conkey Jones, New York society leader and widely known beauty. ere she is shown in a recent picture with her late husband, Richard H. Jones, oil magnate, social registerite and former Annapolis football star, who leaped eight stories to his death from a window of their fashionable apartment after dazing her with a blow when she thought to restrain him. Five years ago Mrs. Jones' father killed himself on his wife's grave in Kansas City.

Comb Big Help To Cage Contest Scorekeepers

HASTINGS, Neb., March 6.—It would be a good joke on the scorekeepers if Adrian Bivens and his twin brother Allen should swap their hair-parting methods on account of it is only by the way they wear their hair that they can be told apart. Adrian parts his on the left, Allen, on the starboard edge. Both are star basketball players at Hastings college.

"It's a good thing you aren't triplets," their coach told them.

"That would be all right," Adrian told him. "The third 'twin' could part his hair in the middle."

Sun Baths For Steeds Resting In Dixieland

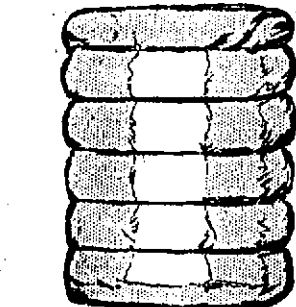

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 6.—(AP)—The last word in horse housing is found in modern equipped winter race track barns where thoroughbreds live during the cold months.

Showers—hot and cold—violet ray, electric lights, steam heat and open air sun bath stalls are all included in the up to date barn.

One of the most pretentious barns in New Orleans is that of Colonel Edward E. Bradley, principal owner of the racing plant. Here are 40 stalls, each carefully ventilated, heated, lighted and roomy. Four large "bath rooms" provide facilities for bathing and grooming the horses after a race and assure the animals of absolute comfort under the most adverse weather conditions.

Columbus High School Girls Win Basket Ball Tournament, Fulton High Hold Second Place

Columbus High School won the Hempstead county basketball tournament which was held last night at the armory in this city. Fulton came in second by winning from Spring Hill by a lopsided score of 28-8. Six teams of various parts of this county entered into the contest to determine who would be champions.

The first game of the tournament started with Spring Hill and Columbus being opponents. Columbus winning by a score of 28-11.

In the second contest of the evening Spring Hill ran rough shod over Piney Grove, the score being 14-2.

In the third game Spring Hill defeated DeAnn by a count of 14-2.

Belton opposed Columbus in the fourth game and went down by a one-sided affair of 49-0.

In the next game DeAnn faced Fulton, but lost by a score of 20-5.

Hard Working Railroad Men Receiving Praise In Saving Life of Boy

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 5.—Five hard working railroad men who compose the switch crew of a Frisco Lines yard force at Fredonia, Kan., are receiving the praise of officers and employees alike these days for their presence of mind and initiative in saving the life of 11-year-old Stewart Lightlo. Young Lightlo, suffering from a ruptured appendix and in danger of death unless he received surgical attention, was snowbound in Fredonia on January 22. Highways were impassable and the only regular train due over the Frisco was several hours away. The switch crew, consisting of Engineer Charles Ayers, conductor J. H. Hall, fireman George Archer and brakemen A. Lane and E. A. Steele, coupled a caboose on their engine and made the 3-mile run from Fredonia to Neodesha in record time. An ambulance was awaiting the he reached the hospital—in time. He was discharged a few days ago completely recovered.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—men who would keep that trim, proper form, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the lithe, youthful, modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

Outchita Seniors Are In Trouble

Freshmen Are Led Into Wilderness In Annual
"Outrage."

PARADELPHIA, March 6.—The freshmen of Outchita college were in a week of trouble last night, while the seniors are having a hard time today.

The seniors last night decided that the freshmen should see some of the country and that they should see it by the pale light of the stars, if they could. Accordingly, the freshmen were taken to meet the seniors at Williams college field. That seemed fair enough and they met.

The freshmen boys were blindfolded and led away into the darkness miles away, in small groups. Blindfolded, of course they got "turned around." Way out in the woods they were released.

After the seniors had disappeared the freshmen took off their pillow cases and where were they? They found they way back to Arkansas and a new mater until the next morning, but they all came back and they know where they are today.

But somebody's mother, of a town freshman, wondered where her wandering boy had gone and she immediately wrote to college authorities who checked up on absences from the boys' dormitory last night. Today a large part of the group of freshmen faced a faculty committee. They were having their hush of trouble and unlike their freshmen friends they don't know yet where they are. They are still in the woods as to their future status as students at Outchita. If they are not wandering, they are wondering if they'll ever get their A. B. degrees. At any rate, they contend that the freshmen boys got a good practical lesson in woodcraft as they wandered in the tangled mazes of the jungles that surround this sea of learning sometimes called "The Athens of Arkansas."

ORDINATION

This is to certify that on the 14th day of August, 1881, the undersigned having been previously invited by the Missionary Baptist Church of Christ at Zion Hill in the County of Hempstead and State of Arkansas, met and proceeded to organize themselves into a Presbytery in the presence of the Church and congregation then and there assembled. Whereupon the church, through her representative, presented Bro. James H. Stewart and requested his ordination to the work of the Gospel Ministry by said Presbytery.

The Presbytery having received the candidate proceeded to his ordination in the following manner:

1st—Examination on Bible qualifications by C. W. Callahan.

2nd—Examination on Articles of Faith by J. N. Acker.

3rd—Ordaining Prayer by Rev. Amos Acker.

4th—Imposition of Hands by the Presbytery.

5th—Presentation and Charge by C. W. Callahan.

6th—Extended the hand of fellowship by Presbytery and Church.

7th—Benediction by the Candidate.

Note: The Ordination sermon was preached by C. W. Callahan to a large and attentive congregation. The church and Presbytery recommended Bro. Stewart to the brotherhood generally as a zealous and pious Christian and worthy young minister.

Done in regular Church Conference on the 14th day of August, A. D. 1881.

TANLAC FREES JOHN BURKHARDT OF STOMACH TROUBLES

Flat on Back, Super Medicine
Puts Him Back on Job

In a few days quicker than you ever thought possible—that super medicine Tanlac starts to prove its merit. And amazing though it may seem, the more stubborn and unyielding the case may be, the more remarkable is the work that Tanlac does in straightening out weak disordered stomachs. It's a real medicine formulated according to modern medical science—that's why—not just a "patent medicine" that makes a lot of ridiculous claims to cure everything. Tanlac was prepared for the specific purpose of strengthening the ailing organs of digestion and because every ingredient in it is designed for helping the good work along, it has won easy victories where everything else has failed. And remember this, when stomach troubles are ended you'll be absolutely amazed at the way bowel troubles, constipation, dizziness, headaches, and even rheumatism usually disappear completely. Tanlac has brought glorious new health to hundreds right here in this town. Among the recent cases is Mr. John Burkhardt who says: "I was flat on my back when I started taking Tanlac. A few doses began to improve my appetite, my digestion grew better and I was soon back on the job." Every mail brings enthusiastic letters of testimonial—52,000,000 bottles have been sold. Guaranteed by all the druggists to accept no substitute.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

THIS CHAPTER, Doris Matthews, pretty English lady, was murdered Friday night in a summer-house by blow on head from heavy perfume bottle body dumped into lake on estate of millionaire Berkeley.

DETECTIVES, however, suspect a Dick Berkeley at time of crime, and discoverer of body at summerhouse, swimming pool, Captain Strawn of the Hamilton Homeless Squad.

MEMBERS OF HOUSEHOLD: Mrs. George Berkeley, social climber, George Berkeley, opposed to his daughter's marriage to Seymour Crosby, New York society widower, under a cloud in the eyes of police, but a close friend of Letitia Lambert, social secretary to Mrs. Berkeley.

Cloinda Berkeley engaged to Crosby, but not in love with him; observed standing out of house Friday night by Dundee.

Gigi Berkeley, 15, who unconsciously sprinkled all guests Friday night from flask of perfume presented by Crosby to her mother.

Dick Berkeley, drunk Friday night, infuriated with Doris, and forced her to agree to meet him Friday night, and known by Dundee to have been missing from his room.

Wickett, butler, formerly in employ of both Mrs. Lambert and Crosby.

Eugene Arnold, chauffeur, engaged to Doris.

Cloinda and Dick are first suspects. Strawn suspects Dundee to find if Dick is in his room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IX

AS Dundee let himself into the house by the front door, hoping to evade the hysterical questions of the servants, who must have noted the arrival of the police cars, the door leading into the backstairs quarters was torn open and a young man in chauffeur's uniform lunged toward him, pausing only long enough to slam the door violently in the face of a maid who was pressing forward inquisitively.

"Excuse me, sir!" the chauffeur panted. "But will you tell me what's up? What are the police doing here? Doris, the upstairs maid, told me Doris didn't sleep in her room last night. It's not true, is it? Nothing's happened to Doris! The police aren't here about her, are they, sir?"

He was almost sobbing, and one big, freckled hand kept running distractedly through his curly, dark-red hair.

When Dundee hesitated to answer, the chauffeur so far forgot himself as to seize the guest's arm and shake it friendly. "For God's sake, sir, why won't you tell me? I'm Arnold—Eugene Arnold, the Berkeley chauffeur, and I'm engaged to be married to Doris. I have a right to ask if anything's happened to her—"

"I'm sorry, Arnold," Dundee said slowly, "but I can't speak for the police. Will you please wait as quietly as possible in the servants' sitting room until Captain Strawn calls for you? And I think it would be wise for you not to talk—"

"Then it is Doris!" Arnold interrupted, his voice going heavy and dull with despair. Then apparently realization swept over him. His freckled, pleasant young face flamed with anger. "Did she elope with Dick Berkeley, sir? Is that what the row's about? For God's sake, tell me!"

"Sorry, but I'm afraid I can't tell you anything, Arnold," Dundee said quietly, and started up the stairs. "Gone! With that drunken rotter!" Arnold groaned, and lurched blindly toward the back-hall door. But before he disappeared Dundee heard him vow, with terrible intensity: "I'll find him and kill him if I have to hunt all over the world for him!"

"Why didn't you tell me Doris had committed suicide?" she demanded coldly.

"A VIOLENT young man," Dundee commented wearily to himself, as he plodded upstairs. "There's nothing Mother enjoys so much as a good fit of hysterics, and Father and I are not on confidential terms just now," she added, with bitter humor. "I see the police have arrived. They'll probably enjoy the sensation. I shouldn't."

Dundee proceeded up the stairs, grateful to Mrs. Lambert and Gigi for not bursting out upon him with questions he could not answer. Odd that Gigi should prefer Mrs. Lambert to her mother, though Dundee could not but be glad that it was the social secretary's gentle understanding which was now coping with the high-strung little girl's shocked nerves.

TEN minutes later, decently dressed and sketchily shaved, Dundee sped down the backstairs and out of the house. A frightened cook and housemaid had peeped out at him, but he had given them no time to question him.

The machinery of the law had been set in motion during his absence. Captain Strawn and his absence, Dr. Price, whom he had met during the investigation into the Rhodes House murders, were bending over the body of the dead girl, still stretched upon the curved bench of the summerhouse. The finger-print expert, Caraway, was already busy with his black powder and camera. Wickett, the butler, still stood outside the little arbor, but Seymour Crosby was missing from the gruesome picture. A knot of uniformed policemen and plain-clothes detectives stood on the lake's edge, awaiting instructions from the chief of the homicide squad.

"Dick Berkeley has not returned," Dundee reported to Strawn, in a voice so low that Wickett could not hear. "Since he's still in dinner clothes—tray're not in his closet—I don't think he could have got far without being noticed."

Strawn turned his back on the corpse, and jerked his head toward the immobile butler. "Got any reason to think the old boy's mixed up in this?" he whispered. "None whatever!" Dundee answered sincerely.

"Then don't you think it might be a good idea to let him in, on the score of your official connection with the police?" Strawn suggested. "If this thing isn't quickly cleared up by a confession from Dick Berkeley and develops into a first-class mystery, we'll need Wickett as an ally. No one knows as much about a family like this as its butler, and besides, he can keep the coast clear of other servants while you snoop around in the bedrooms and such—"

"JUST a minute, chief!" Dundee interrupted. "I agree with you that I might be of infinitely more value as a trusted guest, rather than as a detective, but—hang it all, I am a guest here, and I simply can't do it—snoop around in the bedrooms as you suggest—"

"Resigning from the force, because a friend of yours is mixed up in this, Dundee?" Strawn asked, a sneer twisting his broad, thin mouth.

"I don't think you mean that, Captain Strawn," Dundee answered quietly. "I want to be on the case, but I'd rather be open and above-board about it."

"And jeopardize your future usefulness on the homicide squad? Your uncle, the police commissioner, and I agreed after the Rhodes House murders that you could serve us best by not getting yourself tagged as what the people call a common detective. With the education and social advantages you've had you can move in circles not open to the rest of us—"

"I know the argument, and I've been willing to be of service in any way possible," Dundee interrupted, "but in this instance, I can't bring myself to abuse hospitality so flagrantly. There's another thing, too: as a guest, presumably under police surveillance as much as any other person in the house, I should have little chance to be of any real use to you. I couldn't be secreted behind screens while you were conducting your investigation, as I was at the Rhodes House, and not even Wickett's connivance could long cover my snoopings from servants or members of the family. But if you want my official connection with the homicide squad to be kept dark, I have a suggestion to make."

"Well?" Strawn growled. "Shoot! We've got to get busy."

"You can give out that I am an amateur criminologist, engaged in research work preparatory to writing books on the subject—which is strictly true, by the way; that I have studied Scotland Yard methods and that I was able to render you valuable aid in solving the Rhodes House murders. Otherwise, Chief, I'll have to resign now—with deep regret."

An angry retort trembled on Strawn's lips, but he bit it back, and considered scowlingly. At last he capitulated grumpily: "All right, Dundee! You know I need you, but I'm warning you now that I'm in charge of this case, and I won't have you getting too big for your breeches, Wickett!"

And the hunt was on. (To Be Continued)

Could Have Avoided Years of Suffering

MRS. G. W. HUPP

"If this wonderful new Sargon had only been on the market earlier, I could have avoided years of suffering. For seven years I suffered almost constantly with a dull, aching pain in my side and finally these troubles broke down my whole nervous system."

"Thanks to Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills—all my troubles have disappeared, and I haven't had a headache since taking the treatment." Mrs. G. W. Hupp, 3508 South 29th St., Omaha, Neb.

One bunch new carrots, 1 small onion, 2 cups white stock, 1 1/2 cups milk, 1-2 cup cream, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, paprika.

Wash carrots through several waters, scrubbing thoroughly. Cut in thin slices. Peel and mince onion. Melt butter in soup kettle, add onion and cook over a low fire for five minutes. Add carrots and stock, and simmer until carrots are tender. It will take about 30 minutes. Rub through a coarse sieve and return to the fire with salt and milk and bring to the boiling point but do not let boil. Beat eggs with cream and stir into hot soup. Reheat to make very hot but do not let boil. Sprinkle with paprika and serve.

Tests of Jesus Pastor's Theme

Dr. Bovill Gives Ash Wednesday Sermon at St. Mark's

The lesson of Jesus' self-denial was taken as the text of an Ash Wednesday service preached at St. Mark's Episcopal church here yesterday afternoon by Dr. J. T. Bovill, the rector.

"Let us ponder for a few moments the meaning of our Lord's temptation," said the pastor, "and the significance for us."

At the beginning of his ministry, Jesus goes apart for a period of self-communion in which He faces the possible alternatives of His life and chooses between them.

Three temptations come to Him: That He should turn stone into bread.

That He should cast himself down from the temple and trust God to save him.

That He should win the kingdoms of the earth, by accepting them at the hands of the evil one.

These temptations were no strange things. They are exactly what multitudes of lives must face in their own decision.

They meant that Jesus was tempted to use His supreme power, not in that one moment only, but as a principle which should guide His life.

First of all to make sure that He Himself had all that was needed for comfort and plenty.

It is just the same plausible voice which speaks to modern men and tells them that their first duty is to make money for themselves.

"Could I not therefore, have for us a better purpose than that in its meditation we test ourselves at the points of Jesus' testing? What relation is there for us between the motive of self-indulgence and the motive of duty? How far are we willing to suffer the consequences of spiritual faithfulness?"

NEW HOPE

Webster Ross who has been in Berkeley, Arizona, has returned home to stay for a while.

Miss Pauline Gray of Hope spent Sunday in this community.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Polk of Washington spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Ross.

Mr. Margaret Haire has been attending the bed side of her son, Mr. Porter Haire of Bright Star who has been very sick the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Cox are the proud parents of twin girls, June and Nellie.

We had a large crowd at church Sunday. Brother Wesley Thomas preached a fine sermon on "Prayer" Sunday and Sunday night his subject was "The Bible." They were both fine sermons.

We are glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Boyd and family in our community.

The well known cat in the strange garret had nothing on Sue Carol, when she appeared on the "The Lone Star Ranger," Fox Movietone all talking romantic and thrilling drama, set to portray the character of Mary Albridge. Sue had been playing "flapper" types in so many pictures that she felt herself in a strange atmosphere, but soon adapted herself to the part and declared it was a relief to enact a role, that gives her a chance to be human and sympathetic.

George O'Brien plays the leading male character, Buck Duane, who circumstance compels to become an outlaw, but one with a heart—which he eventually loses. Others in the carefully selected cast are Walter McGrail, Warren Hymer, Lee Shumway, Russell Simpson, Edgar Kennedy, Joe Rickson, Roy Stewart, Richard Alexander, Billy Butts, Colin Chase, Elizabeth Patterson, Caroline Rankin, William Steele, Bob Fleming, Ralph Le Fevre and little Delmar Watson.

A. F. Erickson, former assistant director to F. W. Murnau, directed, and A. H. Van Buren staged the production.

This picture will show at the New Grand Theatre Thursday and Friday.

SWEET HOME

We are still having nice weather at this place.

There are several cases of "flu" in the community. We hope they will recover soon.

Bro. W. T. Bracy filled his regular appointment at this place Sunday and Sunday night.

We are glad to welcome Marie Huskey, former pupil of Blevins, for the rest of the term of school. Also glad to welcome the Meador family to this community from Thomasville.

Our Bulldogs were defeated only two points, last Friday night by Spring Hill.

The ninth annual Fiddler's contest at Sweet Home, will be held at Blevins High School auditorium, on Thursday night, March 13.

Miss Gertrude Delaney took lunch with Miss Ethel Spears Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Taft Barr spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Serwan.

Mrs. Bettie Gordon and daughter Jessie, are still visiting friends and relatives in this community.

There is to be a musical and party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Taft Barr Friday night March 7.

We organized the 4-H club at this place Tuesday morning, March 4. The following officers were elected: President, Elvya Campbell; Vice-President, Guy Lee; Secretary, Ethel Spears; Reporter, Inez Huskey.

"Napoleon of Murder" to Face Trial

A self-styled "Napoleon of murder" who met his Waterloo, "Texas" Jim Baker, confessed slayer of ten men, is pictured above as, heavily shackled and carefully guarded, he arrived in New York to face a charge of having poisoned to death a night watchman. It was revealed that he even had plotted the deaths of Detectives George Fitzpatrick, left, and Arthur Horey, right, who brought him from Detroit. Two loaded pistols and a stiletto were taken from him after he had boarded the New York-bound train.
